My claim is therefore clear and indisputable, and I hope His Highness will have instructions sent to Coutts & Co who in the case of the Mysore Government are their Home Treasury, to pay my pension at the rate fixed by Parliament and sanctioned by the Secretary of State for officers in my position. The difference to me is considerable but to the Mysore Government is not of great consequence. So far as I know there are no other officers in

Harrow, 5 Oct 1906

Dear Mr Macnaghten

I am writing to you, for the information of H. H. the Maharaja, regarding my pension. I have received an official letter from the Mysore Government stating that the pension will be paid at the rate of 1/4 the rupee. But I pointed out that the minimum rate fixed by Parliament and sanctioned by the Secretary of State for India for converting the pension of officers in my position was 1/9 the rupee. I enclose copy of the regulation, supplied by the India Office.

In reply to this I am referred to a note to article 500 of the Mysore Service Regulations but this rule is of recent origin, certainly since the Rendition. But even if it may apply to Native officials or to Europeans entertained in the Mysore Service since that period, - my case is different, as I entered the service at a time when it was British service and might look forward to a pension at 2/- the rupee.

The 1.9 rate was fixed some years ago owing to the hardships to which retired officers were subject on account of the continually falling exchange. The measure was carried through Parliament mainly by the exertions of Sir Seymour King and Sir Roper Lethbridge, and when the latter came to Bangalore, I was chosen, as the senior officer in Mysore benefited by the new rule, to preside at the public dinner given at the United Service Club to thank him for his services in the matter.

Those who have retired before me have

Anyone who can make the same claim mine is then an exceptional case.
I did not anticipate any difficulty in urging, and am sorry that it is necessary to write about it. I trust that I need not urge the length and nature of my service to justify special consideration. But in fact I am asking no more than the rules allow.

I am staying here for the present, but have been moving about to different friends' houses. In the winter I am advised not to remain in England

and an arranging to go Switzerland.

With kind regards.

Yours sincerely
